The University of Illinois Department of Religion

presents

Islam, Salvation, and the Fate of Others

Friday, April 16 and Saturday, April 17, 2010
Chancellor Ballroom, I-Hotel
1900 S. 1st Street, Champaign IL
http://religion.illinois.edu/salvation

Friday, April 16

9:00am  Opening

9:30am  “When It Comes to Salvation, Who Is the Other?”
Daniel Madigan, Georgetown University

10:30am  “The Food of the Damned”
David M. Freidenreich, Colby College

11:30am  “Are Non-Muslims Subject to the Shariah?”
A. Kevin Reinhart, Dartmouth University

2:15pm  “Negotiating Exclusion and Inclusion: The Hermeneutics of Moderation”
Asma Afsaruddin, Indiana University

3:15pm  “Revisiting the Status of the Other in the Quran”
Muqtedar Khan, University of Delaware

4:15pm  “Non-Reductive Pluralism and Religious Dialogue”
Muhammad Legenhausen, Imam Khomeini Education and Research Institute

7:00pm  “The Ambiguity of the Quranic Command”
William Chittick, Stony Brook University

8:00pm  “The Quranic Portrayal of the Jews and the Possibilities for Its Redemption”
Farid Esack, University of Johannesburg

Saturday, April 17

9:30am  “Embracing Relational Hybridity and Theological Tensions”
Jerusha Lampety, Georgetown University

10:30am  “Oneself as the Saved Other?”
Sajjad Rizvi, University of Exeter

Marcia Hermansen, Loyola University Chicago

2:00pm  “The Islamic Theory of Salvation” (live via video link)
Tariq Ramadan, Oxford University

3:00pm  “The Path of Allah or the Paths of Allah?”
Yasir Qadhi, Yale University

4:00pm  “Citizen Ahmad—How Constitutional Pluralism and Public Square Debate Impact Soteriological Thinking in Egypt and Indonesia”
Bruce Lawrence, Duke University

6:45pm  “Citizen Iman—How Constitutional Pluralism and Public Square Debate Impact Soteriological Thinking in North America and Europe”
Patrice Brodeur, Université de Montréal

7:45 pm  Closing Thoughts by Amir Hussain (Loyola Marymount University) and Sherman A. Jackson (University of Michigan)

Cospromors: Office of the Provost, International Council (Hewlett International Conference grant), College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, School of Literatures, Cultures, and Linguistics, Center for South Asian and Middle Eastern Studies (Title VI, Dept. of Education), Center for Global Studies (Title VI, Dept. of Education), European Union Center (Title VI, Dept. of Education), Global Crossroads Living-Learning Community, The Program in Jewish Culture and Society, Center for African Studies (Title VI, Dept. of Education), Russian, East European and Eurasian Center (Title VI, Dept. of Education), Department of History, Department of Sociology, Gender and Women’s Studies Program, Religious Studies Student Association

Art by Naseer Yahya and Beth Creek